Sara Jordan Publishing at School Products Expo in Georgia

Educational Composer Gears up for 15th Run at NSSEA Show

(NIAGARA FALLS, NY –February 5, 2007) - Sara Jordan of Sara Jordan Publishing will be exhibiting at the National School Supply and Equipment Association 2007 Expo being held in Atlanta, Georgia. The show will run March 9-11, 2007.

Jordan and her team will be exhibiting and networking at the show for the fifteenth time. The expo is the largest marketplace for educational products in the US. The Expo is timed to coincide with school ordering budgets for the following year and is an important venue for manufacturers of educational products, catalogue publishers, and educational businesses.

"Coming to NSSEA is like coming back to a big family," Jordan said. "Everyone knows everyone and it's a good place to re-connect. I like coming to show new products and to see what is new in the educational product industry. It's good to get new ideas and see what the new trends are."

Sara Jordan Publishing will have their entire listing of products on site and will be launching the new Sight Word series based on the Dolch system of high-frequency words used in the English language.

Membership of the NSSEA is now over 1500 companies involved in the school market industry. Since 1916, the NSSEA has promoted an open market for quality educational products and services.
